COMPLAINTS MADE OF ILLEGAL SALES

Reported That Minors Have No Difficulty in Purchasing Liquor At Some of the Saloons.

PENALTY IS PROVIDED BY LAW

Demand May Be Made That Alleged Violations and Charges of Sunday Sales Be Investigated.

Quite frequently during the past few months, comment has been made upon the practice of certain saloon keepers of selling intoxicating liquors to minors. It is said that boys several years under their majority have no trouble in purchasing intoxicating liquors at several of the saloons in this city. Several of the retail liquor houses have notices posted that minors will not be permitted to enter the places and it is known that some of the saloonists are endeavoring to obey the law. From all reports, however, others give no attention to the regulative measures as passed by the legislature and are making sales to all persons regardless of their age or other conditions.

The law specifically provides that intoxicating liquors shall not be sold to any boy under twenty-one years of age. The statute of 1905, Section 575, says that, "Whosoever directly or indirectly sells, barter or gives away any spirituous, vinous or malt, or other intoxicating liquors to any person under the age of twenty-one years, either for his own use or for the use of any other person whomsoever, shall, on conviction, be fined not less than $20 nor more than $100." The law of 1912 also provides that the license of any saloonist may be revoked by the county commissioners when he has been found guilty three times of violating any of the liquor laws.

It is stated that at some of the saloons a number of young boys have been intoxicated recently and that at one place a sale was made a short time ago to a lad in short trousers, who could hardly reach to the bar for his drink. Such reports as these have aroused quite a number of persons, who desire that the officers take some action and see that the laws are more rigidly enforced.

It is also common knowledge that liquor is being sold in Seymour almost every Sunday. Several attempts have been made to bring the law violators to justice but thus far the efforts have been unsuccessful. It is said that the grand jury has made some investigation of the violation of liquor laws in this city but it is not known just what action will be taken as result of these investigations.

In a very short time the licenses of the majority of the saloons will expire and it will be necessary for them to secure renewals before they can engage in business for another year. Some of the people, whose attention has been called to the open violations, believe that the commissioners should be cautious in granting renewals to certain saloonists and believe that if they are not already informed of the conditions here, they should be given the facts as they exist before the licenses are reissued.

Under the recent law of this state the county commissioners can not lawfully issue a license to any applicant, where there is proof that he has not lived up to the law in the past. Just what action will be taken has not been definitely decided upon at this time, but something of a startling nature may be expected in the near future, if the open sales to minors continue.

Looking For Son.

Luke Alexander, colored, of Jeffersonville is trying to locate his son, John, who left that place March 10, for Carthage, Mo. The young man is twenty-one years of age and was last heard from at North Vernon. His father fears that he had been drowned in the flood. Any information regarding the missing man will be appreciated by his father.

WHITE RIVER IS SLOWLY CUTTING THE WEST BANK

Believed that Current Will Soon Run West of the Dam Unless Diverted.

White River at Rockford has fallen nine inches today and it is expected that the water will continue to recede unless there are heavy rains within the next few hours. The river left its banks yesterday and flooded some of the lowlands in the vicinity but they were not seriously damaged. The road just west of the wagon bridge was covered with water for some distance but teams are able to use the highway today.

During the rise about four feet of the west bank opposite the power house were taken away by the current, which is regarded as proof that the river is slowly cutting through that bank. Much of the soil around the west part of the wagon bridge has been washed away by the swift water, but it has not been seriously weakened. Many of the people in that vicinity are in favor of building water wings in the canal so as to divert the current in the opposite direction.

B. & O. SOUTHWESTERN PAY-CAR REACHED CITY TODAY

Change in Schedule Made Friday Afternoon—Employees Paid Wages in Cash.

The pay car on the B. & O. S-W. was delayed for several hours, arriving here about ten o'clock Friday night. It was scheduled to reach this city about two o'clock in the afternoon but the plans were changed at North Vernon and the car did not remain here long making the trip to Vallonia before many of the employees were notified. The pay car returned here this morning and was visited by quite a number of the B. & O. S-W.

After the work here was completed, additional funds were secured from the First National Bank and the car went to Aurora, paying all the men who were working on the track between Seymour and that place. This is the first time the B. & O. S-W. has paid in cash for several years as the checks are usually sent out from Baltimore, but it was decided to use the pay car this month because of the condition of the roadbed.

Victor Obering, a wealthy brewer of Lawrenceburg, has deeded 136 acres of land near Lawrenceburg Junction to the town treasurer who will have it divided into lots and given to the flood sufferers.

PROPERTY HELD ON MARCH 1 ASSESSED

State Board of Tax Commissioners Holds it is Not Affected by Subsequent Flood Damage.

BUT REBATE MAY BE GIVEN

Law Provides That Affidavit Must be Filed With County Auditor—Insurance Bars Claim.

Personal property destroyed or damaged by the flood after March 1 will be assessed the same as if it had not been affected by the high water, according to the instructions received by County Assessor J. B. Cross from the State Board of Tax Commissioners. It is explained that the law requires that all property held or owned on the first day of March shall be assessed and is not affected by any subsequent damage or loss.

The instructions further state, however, that another law provides that if property is damaged or destroyed by unavoidable causes the owners may make affidavit and obtain a rebate according to the time such property was destroyed. Such affidavits must be filed with the county auditor as early as possible.

The instructions received by County Assessor Cross read as follows: To All Assessing Officers:

Many inquiries have been made of this Board since the disastrous flood regarding the attitude to be assumed by assessing officers in assessing persons and property affected by the flood conditions.

In order that there may be uniform practice all over the state with reference to the assessment of such person and property, we beg to call your attention to the Statute covering the assessment of property and the conditions under which persons suffering loss by unavoidable casualty may be relieved. Section 10157 Burns' R. S. 1900, provides: "Personal property shall be listed for taxation between the first day of March and the 15th day of May, each year with reference to the quantity and quality held or owned on the first day of March, in the year for which the property is required to be listed."

You will observe from the foregoing statute that all property is to be assessed as of the first day of March and that its quantity or quality so far as this assessment is concerned is not affected by subsequent damage or loss, and such damage or loss should not be taken into consideration in making such assessment.

The Legislature has wisely provided another method by which persons suffering damage or loss by unavoidable casualty may be relieved, and such method is set out in Section 10147 Burns' R. S. 1908, which is as follows: "In all cases where buildings or personal property shall be destroyed, in whole or in part, by unavoidable casualty, after being assessed for the year, and such loss is not covered by insurance, the county auditor shall, upon sworn proof of such loss, allow a rebate of such proportion of the taxes for that year as that part of the year which shall remain, for such destruction, bears to the whole year."

The reference to the insurance upon property refers of course to such insurance as covers the character of the loss suffered. Where property has fire or tornado insurance and the loss is occasioned by flood, such insurance would not be available to the property owner and consequently would be no bar to a claim for a rebate under the statute.

While the law does not fix a limit within which such affidavit must be filed, auditors and assessing officers should urge an early compliance with the statute so that boards having power to levy taxes may be in a position to know the amount of property available for taxation purposes, at the time when such levies are required to be made.

All assessing officers are requested to give this notice as wide publicity as possible, through newspapers, and to inform all persons suffering loss from floods.

Respectfully,

State Board of Tax Commissioners.

TO KEEP CHECK ON PARCEL POST BUSINESS NEXT WEEK

Postmaster Remy Receives Instructions to Report Regarding Packages Received.

Postmaster Remy has received instructions from the Department at Washington to keep an account of all the incoming parcel post business at the local office next week. The first figures regarding the volume of business in this department were made at the close of the first fifteen days of January just after the law went into force. The postoffice department has asked all offices in the United States to keep an account next week so that it will be possible to ascertain the increase or decrease of business.

Since the trains are running again the parcel post business has been heavier than usual. Many packages were delayed for some time when the trains quit running and such mail was the last to be sent out. Quite a large number of parcel post packages were received this morning and it is believed that the business will be normal by next week.

Among the cities in southern Indiana that have poor water supplies is Columbus. A new filter will be built there this summer and the citizens hope to have water of a higher standard. A Columbus resident said that turtles and snails were frequently found in the water, their size depending upon the width of the faucet from which they were drawn.

W. W. Bettice, of Indianapolis, is here to succeed Walter Cordes, local agent of the Adams Express Company. Mr. Cordes has accepted a position as cashier at the Wheeling, W. Va., office and will assume his duties there at once. Mr. Bettice has been an employee at the Indianapolis office for five years and is familiar with the work.

James Newman, who was recently hurt in an automobile accident at Indianapolis, is improving. He was crossing the street when he was hit by a machine. His leg was broken and he was removed to a hospital. He is the father of Mrs. Wright Payne, of this city.

The members of the Shield's high school gave a box supper in the gymnasium Friday evening to raise funds for the Athletic Association. The young ladies of the classes brought the boxes and they were sold to the young men. The latter part of the evening was spent in a social way.

FORMER SCHEDULE ON PENNSYLVANIA

All Trains on This Road Running as Usual Between Indianapolis and Louisville.

WORK CONTINUES AT MEDORA

Expected That Temporary B. & O. S-W. Trestle There Will Be Completed Next Week.

With the exception of the resumption of the usual trains over the Pennsylvania line, there has been little change in the traffic conditions in Seymour during the past twenty-four hours. The afternoon north-bound passenger train was the first to use the main line on the Pennsylvania road between Indianapolis and Louisville and since that time the trains have been running as scheduled, although some of them are shortly behind time. Some of the trains have been running in two sections to accommodate the large number of passengers. The express business is also gradually increasing as more of the connecting lines are in running condition.

There has been practically no change on the B. & O. S-W. A large force of workmen are still employed at Medora and it is expected that the temporary trestle work will be completed by the latter part of next week. As soon as this is finished, train service will be resumed between Seymour and Washington. The road between Washington and Medora has been placed in fairly good shape and trains have been operated between those cities for several days.

A few additional men have been sent to Lawrenceburg where there are several weeks' work in repairing the track and roadbed. Part of the high embankment near Lawrenceburg was washed away and because of the condition of the soil as a result of the continued rains, it is difficult to make the fill.

On all the roads that have been repaired since the flood, the trains are running on slow orders and it will be several weeks before the usual schedule can be maintained. Hundreds of workmen are still employed within a radius of fifty miles of this city and the roadbeds are being repaired as rapidly as possible. In some places the track is still very rough, but the officials have announced that there is no danger as they would not permit the trains to run at all until the track was pronounced safe.

The rains during the past few days have handicapped the workmen in making much progress as the soil is very soft and furnishes but little foundation. This necessitates the handling of much more gravel. During the rain only part of the workmen of the section gang are employed.

Sixty-seven people were present at the closing exercises of the White school Friday afternoon. Members of each family represented in the school were present besides a large number of the neighbors and friends. Miss Emma Ross, the teacher, was not aware of the plan for a big dinner until the guests arrived shortly before the noon hour.

Another Old Paper.

J. A. Gorbet has a copy of the Seymour Daily Republican of Jan. 17, 1879. It is Vol. 1, No. 10, so it goes back to within ten days of the first issue. The paper was published by Platter, Sons & Co. and was issued every morning except Monday. J. R. Abernathy and Peter Platter are political editors and Henry H. Moore, local editor. Among the advertisers are S. V. Harding, The McCollum House, Jesse Bartup, Ben Klippel, Joseph Giger, John Shockley, Clint Reno, Wm. K. Marshall, Dr. L. M. Mains, Dr. W. T. Erwood, Jos. Balsley, A. M. Harding, F. E. Brown, Mike Collara, Platter & Sons, Len Hibner, Noel's gallery, W. B. Phillips.

The paper is a four page, our column paper and is well printed. It is discolored somewhat by age but otherwise it is in good condition.

C. C. Frey was agent for the O. & M. railroad, and J. S. Mills for the J. M. & I. railroad.

WILL MAKE TESTS FOR OIL AND GAS NEAR NORTH VERNON

Company Has Been Organized and Several Wells Will Be Drilled in Jennings County.

Believing that oil and natural gas can be found in paying quantities in Jennings county, a company has been organized at North Vernon for the purpose of sinking wells. There are quite a number of stockholders who elected N. M. King as president, N. J. Inman, vice-president, Clarence O'Haver, secretary and E. W. Tech, treasurer.

The first wells will be sunk near the glass factory and should no gas or oil be found here others will be drilled at various places near the city. A dozen wells, or rather holes, have been drilled in the vicinity of North Vernon during the past twenty-five years and gas in small quantities has been found, but the supply was soon exhausted. The stockholders of the newly organized company are of the opinion that gas or oil may be located in that vicinity and have announced that they will make a thorough test. Considered ground has been leased.

NEW MOTOR LAW IN FORCE JULY 1

Provides for the Registration and Regulation of Automobiles and Motorcycles.

FEES RANGE FROM $2 TO $50

Number Plates Issued to Owners
Free of Charge by State Upon Payment of License.

On July 1 the new motor law will take effect, and after that date all owners of automobiles and motorcycles will be required to take out a new license as provided by that measure.

Senate Bill 205 (Chapter 300), approved March 15, provides for the registration and regulation of motor vehicles and for the examination and licensing to chauffeurs and provides penalties for violations of the act.
Traction engines, road rollers, fire wagons and engines, ambulances and police patrol wagons, and all bicycles or other vehicles propelled by huseul-ar power, together with motor vehicles running upon rails, are excluded from the operation of the act.
Every person operating a motor vehicle as an employe for hire is required to be licensed as a chauffeur.
Applications for license must be made within ten days after the applicants becomes the owner of a motor vehicle or a motor bicycle operated on a public highway. The application shall be made on a blank to be furnished by the secretary of state for that purpose, and verified and the secretary shall file and index the same and give the applicant a number and issue to him a certificate of registration and a number plate. A duplicate may be obtained on affidavit of the loss of the original, by paying $1. All registrations shall expire on December 31 of each year. During 1913 the fees will be prorated, but thereafter
the full fee will be charged for registration prior to August 1, and half the fee for registration after August 1, of each year. The fees range from $2 for a motor bicycle, and $5 for a motor vehicle of twenty-five horse power or less, or $3 for an electric motor vehicle, up to $20 for a motor vehicle of more than fifty-horse power. The fee for commercial trucks is $5. A license shall be terminated by a change of ownership and the new owner must take out a new license.
By payment of "the proper fee," the old license number may be transferred to a new vehicle registered by the former owner. Number plates similar to those heretofore in use are to be furnished by the state and delivered without charge. The use of fictitious numbers is forbidden. Non-resident owners displaying registration licenses from their own states, with the laws with which they have complied, shall be exempt from registration. Two front lights are required, and a red light at the rear which shall be independent of any other lights, "and so adjusted that in lighting and extinguishing the same the motor vehicle must be stationary and the rays of such rear lamps shall shine upon the number plate," so as to make the numerals visible one hundred feet away. Also, bells, horns, brake, etc. The provisions as to stopping when meeting persons,

when animals are frightened, etc.,
are similar to the old law, and so are the regulations as to speed, except that the maximum speed in closely built up portions of towns and cities is ten miles an hour instead of eight miles, and the maximum speed on country highways is twenty-five miles an hour instead of twenty miles. At corners and curves the speed must be reduced to six miles an hour. Unlawful rates of speed are declared prima facie evidence that such rate is "greater than is reasonable, having regard to the traffic and the use of the way, or so as to endanger the life or limb or the property of any person." Local authorities are permitted to "set aside for a given time
a specified public highway for speed contests or races, to be conducted under the proper restrictions for the safety of the public." Local ordinances imposing license fees or requiring numbers to be displayed, etc., are prohibited, except for the regulation of speedways created, authorized or maintained in a local municipality and rules limiting speed in public parks, which apply equally to motor bicycles and motor vehicles, together with all other vehicles.

"Motor vehicles or motor bicycles
may be excluded from any cemetery or grounds used for the burial of the dead, by the authorities." Cities and towns may regulate trucks and motor cars used for public hire, and may make and enforce reasonable traffic regulations.

Chauffeurs must pass an examination, as required by the secretary of state, and a showing of qualifications, together with the applicant's photograph, must be furnished to him. "No chauffeur's license shall be issued to any person under eighteen years of age." Each chauffeur shall be given a distinctive number or mark, which shall be of a different color each year, and each licensed chauffeur shall receive a suitable metal badge with his mark or number upon it, which he shall wear "affixed to his clothing in a conspicuous place at all times when he is operating or driving a motor vehicle upon the public

"BOB" BURMAN
one of the first to enter the 500 mile race at the Indianapolis speedway in May.

highway." The fee for a chauffeur's license is $2, which must accompany the application. Nobody but the licensee may use such a license. Violations of different provisions of the act are punishable by fines not exceeding $50 in some cases and not exceeding $100 in others. Operating a motor vehicle or motor boat while intoxicated is punishable by a fine not exceeding $50. It is made a felony, punishable by a fine of not more than $500, or imprisonment in the state prison not exceeding two years, or both (imprisonment for five years for a second offense) to run away after "causing an injury to a person or property, due to the culpability of said operator," without stopping and giving the operator's name, residence, street and number and his license number to the injured party, or to a police station or judicial officer. A person convicted of so doing shall have his license revoked and can only have it reissued in case the secretary of state, or investigation, decides to reissue it. Violations of numerous other provisions with regard to making false statements in an application for license, operating a motor vehicle when intoxicated, etc., are punishable by suspension of the licenses for a second offense and its revocation for a third offense, with imprisonment on each conviction.

The license fees, after deducting expenses, shall be divided into three parts, and one-third distributed among the counties equally, one-third divided among the counties in proportion to the number of miles of improved highways, and one-third divided among the counties in proportion to the amount received from the registration tax.

The act shall take effect July 1, 1913.

but might never cease to follow except at her severe displeasure.

Valentine Corliss, suave, European in manner, reputed rich, fell subject as all the rest. But Corliss was playing a little game of his own, and he had no intention of wrecking it for a woman. He perceived the advantage of having Cora's wiles at his command, and so he made love to her. But he took one false step—and thereby hangs the tale.

Cora has a small brother, too, Hedrick, who doesn't know what it is to sleep on the job. He adds zest to a story that is full of the charm of real people.

It is an American romance—and who knows better than Booth Tarking-ton how to do that?

If There Were Better Automobiles At The PRICE We Would Have Them

Service Department

The Service Department will be under the supervision of Mr. Charles Hyatt, who has been in the automobile repair business for the past ten years. Only competent workmen will be employed. Repair work will be intelligently and skilfully handled at moderate prices for the service rendered. Special attention will be given to this branch of the business and owners of cars will receive the best attention and due courtesy at all times.

Garage

Here are a few of the conveniences we offer you:

FREE AIR FOR TIRES. You are welcome to use it as freely as the air you breathe. We want you to use it. Have installed the equipment at a large expense especially for that purpose.

Ample storage room for your car at a very small charge. Not enough to cover space rental on the floor, but we want you to have all the comforts of a modern garage, and we offer you this privilege at a sacrifice, and hope you will avail yourself of it.

Courteous treatment. This costs us nothing, but it is, unfortunately, a rare luxury in the motorist's experience, and we are sure you will appreciate it. The motorist's patience is often severely tried by the neglect or indifference of garagemen and repairmen. We want to make our garage a balm for motorists' wounded feelings.

P. S. This Garage is open day and night. We can wash and polish your car at any time.

Supplies--"If it's for an Auto We Have It"

We expect to meet all the requirements of the trade in the way of supplies and accessories. We are southern distributors for Firestone Tires.

Stock of Michelin Tires, which include the famous Michelin Red Inner Tube.

We have installed at a large expense, an outside fire proof Bowser gasoline outfit, equipped with filter which will prevent water and dirt from getting in the gasoline tank of your car. The gasoline is transferred from the Bowser tank to your car by a special gasoline hose. This eliminates all danger of fire. The price will be so reasonable that you cannot afford to keep gasoline at your home or private garage.

Our Motto

"Not How Much We Can Do But How Good We Can Do It."

It is our aim to make our establishment one in which our motorers can take just pride, and our efforts are so directed.

If you live out of town, telephone your orders No. 599 and shipments will be made by first method of transportation offered.

THE RENEWAL OF LICENSES.

Applications for the renewal of liquor licenses will be filed with the county commissioners in a short time. In view of the numerous complaints that have been made regarding the open violations by several of the saloonists, it is highly important that the commissioners use the highest degree of care in granting such licenses in this city. If all reports are true, some of the saloon keepers have been guilty of gross carelessness in making their sales and as a result intoxicating liquor has unlawfully fallen into the hands of boys of tender years, who under the law are not permitted to enter the saloon or drink liquors in places where the same are sold.

There is no reason why special privileges should be extended to saloon keepers and they be allowed to violate the law, while persons, who are found guilty of misdemeanors, robberies, or other minor offenses, are speedily arrested and brought to the bar of justice. The liquor business under our present laws is different from almost any other. The open saloon is permitted to operate under certain laws and is regulated by certain measures, which have been adopted by the state legislature. The business is allowed to continue because of these laws and it is expected that the saloon keepers will live up to the measures which have been deemed necessary by the representatives of the people.

There is another side to this business which should be regarded as very important by those who are engaged in it. There is no doubt but there is a growing sentiment throughout the whole country at this time against the open liquor traffic. This sentiment was caused very largely by the unlawful manner in which many of the saloons were conducted. There are many engaged in this business, who can see the handwriting on the wall and they know that unless the business is conducted according to the law, the life of the open saloon is limited, and it will be but a question of time until the liquor traffic is entirely wiped out. It may be said to the credit of some of the local saloons that they are conducting their business in a legitimate way, observing the closing hours, holidays and other laws, which have been made to safeguard the interests of the

Hardy Roses

In hardy roses for the garden or lawn, we are offering the few varieties that have been found to be the most reliable. They have plump green wood and hosts of roots.

We also offer you two of the best Clematis—Jackmanii—Deep purple, Paniculata—Feathery white.

The above will be on sale at our store, 16 N. Chestnut street Saturday, April 12th, and thereafter during the spring.

general public. The time is not very far distant when the saloon business must be conducted in a lawful way and if the officers do not enforce the laws, other means will be provided by the people which will put the saloon out of business entirely.

The liquor traffic under our present laws is a legalized business. Sales may be made to certain persons at certain times and public sentiment demands that these regulations be observed and enforced. There are people in this city who are in favor of the open saloon, but who are bitterly opposed to the flagrant violations such as the selling of liquor to children of tender age, who might thus be induced to become habitual drunkards and their careers ruined, thus making it impossible for them to become useful citizens of the next generation.

With the saloon man the observance of the laws should be a business proposition if nothing more. He should recognize that his business will be permitted to continue only so long as all of the regulations are observed. In granting the renewal of the licenses, the county commissioners should be assured that each applicant will observe the law and will conduct his business as the state has provided.

After an analysis of a sample of the water furnished the patrons of the Seymour Water Company, the State Board of Health made a favorable report regarding its purity. There are very few cities in Indiana at this time that are given pure water, and the local Company is deserving of praise for its efforts in keeping up the standard during the flood. At many places the water supply has become contaminated and it can be safely used only after it has been thoroughly boiled.

MORGAN'S BODY LIES IN NEW YORK HOME

Flags at Half Mast When Vessel Arrived.

New York, April 12.—With the body of J. P. Morgan the steamship France came up the bay late yesterday afternoon, flags at half mast on boat and pier, drooping and veiled by a steady rain. The coffin, covered with an American flag so that only a strip of the plain oak was visible, was borne ashore while bare-headed French officers and stewards and cabin boys stood at attention and the ship's orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner."

The flag that was draped over the coffin was the one presented by the United States through Ambassador Herrick to the France when she started on her first voyage a year ago. It was hidden by flowers.

On the coffin was a cross of the Legion of Honor, and against the wall of the lower end of the pier stood a great cross of pink orchids from the Kaiser with the inscription, "William, Rex, Imperator."

When J. P. Morgan, Jr., boarded the France he went immediately to the suite of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee. Mr. Morgan then went below and spent fifteen minutes alone in the chapel beside the body of his father.

When all other passengers had left the vessel the men of the funeral party assembled in the mortuary chapel to follow the body to the hearse. Through the driving rain the hearse slowly carried its burden to the Morgan home, where the body will lie until taken to St. George's church for the funeral services at 10 o'clock Monday.

A MENACE TO NAVIGATION

An Unusual Number of Derelicts on the Atlantic.

Washington, April 12.—An unusually large number of derelicts are being discovered along the Atlantic coast as a result of the recent storm.

Some half dozen have been reported within the last week to the revenue cutter service and practically all the cutters along the coast are out endeavoring to remove them for the safety of navigation. In the meantime revenue cutters are patrolling the north Atlantic in search of ice bergs in order that trans-Atlantic ships may be warned. A number of bergs already have been reported, but so far the ice has not reached nearly so far south as it had at this time last year when it entered the track of west-bound ships on the southern course.

Became Fastened in Belt.

Knightstown, Ind., April 12.—William Smith, thirty-six years old, was probably fatally injured when he became fastened in the belt of a large dynamo and was thrown to the floor. His skull was fractured and three ribs broken.

AS TO "LOOKING GIFT HORSES IN THE MOUTH."

The old saying, "Don't look a gift horse in the mouth," used to apply to the advertising a manufacturer did for the benefit of the retailer who handled his product.

The mere fact that the manufacturer was spending the money on advertising was supposed to satisfy the retailer, who was told not to question the quality of the "gift horse"—the advertising being the "gift horse."

Times have changed. Retail houses understand the value of advertising that creates direct demand—of local newspaper advertising.

If the manufacturer wants to spend money in advertising for your benefit, Mr. Retailer, why not insist that it shall be spent where it will do both you and him the most good?

The best way to bring customers to your store to inquire for a nationally distributed article is through the columns of THE REPUBLICAN and other good newspapers. Tell the manufacturer that, Mr. Retailer.

BRUSSELS PREPARING FOR GIGANTIC STRIKE

People Laying In Stores of Necessities.

Brussels, April 12.—Outwardly this city today wears its habitual expression of busy cheerfulness. The streets are filled with animated pedestrians and all the restaurants and theaters are well patronized. Everything seems to be normal, but beneath the surface there is deep anxiety over the general strike which is to be inaugurated on Monday for a universal suffrage bill. The people are laying in big stores of the unperishable necessities of life. The strike is an unusual one. It has nothing to do with wages or hours, but is directed solely against the government and is aimed at forcing a revision of the franchise. Premier Broqueville is convinced that the strike will not succeed. If it did it would mean revolution, he declares.

CHAPTER III. The Spoils of War.

DUNWODY remained seated at the table, carelessly shuffling the cards between his fingers. Once in awhile he cast an amused glance toward Carlisle and at last remarked, as though continuing an arrested thought:

"Amanuensis, is she?" He chuckled. "I think that will do, my dear Dunwody," rejoined Carlisle, the hot blood in his face. "Frankly, this is unwell come to me."

"I'll tell you what I'll do with you," exclaimed the Missourian suddenly. "I'll bet you every cent in this pile of my winnings here that that young lady isn't your amanuensis and never has been. I'll bet it's like that she is no relative of yours. I'll bet it all over again that she is the most beautiful woman that ever set foot on a boat on this river, or ever set foot on any land. Moreover, I'll bet again—"

"You might win a certain share of these wagers," smiled the young officer willing to pass by a possible argument. "Moreover, I am quite willing to discuss arrangements for changing the term of servitude of this young lady. I've been doing a little thinking about one or two matters since this morning."

"What?" "Quite right. I wouldn't care to restrain her in any way, if she cared to travel in other company. Our work is well advanced toward completion, as it is. My fortunes need mending now. Do you think I could continue a journey down the river in company so strong at cards as yours? At a later time, if you like, I will endeavor to get my revenge."

"Suppose you have it now," said Dunwody calmly.

"Tut, tut! I don't borrow to play cards."

"You do not need to borrow, I say. Your stake equals mine, and we will play at even odds. Come, let us deal one poker hand between two and to the hilt."

The other man looked at him and gazed at the heaped pile of coins and notes which lay before him. "I don't understand," said he.

"You don't understand me," said Dunwody, looking him fair in the face. "I said that your stake can easily be equal with this on the table. I'll play you just two out of three jack pots between the two of us. You see my stake."

"But mine?"

"You can make it even by writing one name—and correctly—here on a piece of paper. Full value—yes, ten times as much as mine! You are giving odds, man!" "I don't understand you."

"You don't want to understand me. Come, now. You, as an army man, ought to know something of the history of poker in these United States. Listen, my friend. Do you recall a certain game played by a man high in authority—yesterday than he is today—a game played upon a snowbound train in the north country? Do you remember what the stakes were—then? Do you recall that that man later became a president of the United States? Come. There is fine precedent for our little enterprise."

The swift flush on the face of the other man made his answer. Dunwody went on mercilessly:

"He played then much as you do now. There was against him then, as there is now against you, a man who admired not so much just one woman; in all the world as, let us say, one particular woman then and there present. Perhaps you remember his name—Mr. Parish. Picture that snowbound train that great citizen and Parish playing and playing until at last it came to the question of a woman—not so beautiful as this one here, but in her own way shrewd, the same sort of woman. I might say—mysterious, beautiful and, no, don't protest, and I'll not describe you remember very well her name. It was pleasant property not so long ago for everybody. They played for the love, not for the hand, of that woman. Parish won her. Do you remember now?"

The younger man sat looking at him silently, his face now grown quite pale. Dunwody went on:

"It was a man's game and well worth the playing. Your former head of the army, at least, lost; and he paid. The other won. All Ogdensburg can tell you about that today. They lived there—together—Parish and the woman till he went abroad. Yes, and she was a prisoner there not simply for a short time. She lived and died there. Whatever Parish did, whoever he was, he never loved any other woman as he did that one. And when it comes to that no other woman in that town ever was loved more than she by everybody."

Carlisle made no remark, and Dunwody went on.

"She had political intrigues back of her just as this woman here has, for all I know. Here is that same situation, twice in one lifetime! It's ominous for somebody. There is trouble in the air for some or all of us. But I say I offer you fair play, even, man to man. I ask no questions. She is the most beautiful woman I have ever seen. I have looked her in the face. I shall never see such another face again. Man, I'm mad over her. And you've just said you'd loose your hold on her, whatever it is, for her sake. Once my hold was on her she never should get away again."

"What do you propose?" asked the other hoarsely.

"I propose only to offer you that same game over again," replied Dunwody. "Man, what an uncanny thing this is. But remember, one thing—no matter what comes, I shall never mention our meeting here. I will play you two out of three to see who takes her." His voice was low, tense, savage.

The younger man sat back in his chair. One knowing his tempestuous nature might have expected anger, consternation, resentment, to remain on his face. On the contrary, a sudden light seemed to come into his countenance. Suddenly he stifled a smile. He passed a hand across his brow as though to assure himself. It was no so much confidence or resolution as half deliberation which shone in his eye as he cast a glance upon the heap of money on the opposite side of the table. Yet no sordid thought, no avarice, was in his gaze. What passed across his countenance little by little was relief, relaxation from a strain, a solution of some doubtful problem.

At one stroke he might secure for himself ridance of the company of an embarrassing companion who already had served notice of her intention to desert him and might also keep silent this man whom she had asked for aid. As for him, she would take his measure quickly enough if he presumed in any way. The greatest misfortune possible to his perplexed soul was that the cards should not be against him.

"Senator Dunwody," said he at length, "you and I are from different parts of the country—from two different countries, you might say. You be here in slavery and the extension of it

I believe in just the reverse. I would sacrifice my professional future, if need were, in that belief." The other reddened, but his eyes did not waver.

"Very good! Now, I want to say to you this much: The young lady who has been with me is dangerous. She is an abolitionist of the strictest sect. She is very likely a European revolutionist, among other things. She is dangerous as such. I think I can say this much and break no pledge of confidence. We know she has appealed to you for aid. My own errand, if you please, is near to its close. It has been—"

"Cut the cards, man!" cried the Missourian. It was lucky that he interrupted. He was just in time to prevent the other from making the mistake of saying what was the truth—that he was in any case about to leave the young lady to her own devices and by her own request.

"It would be ruin to me if this were known, Senator Dunwody, and of that you are perfectly aware."

"I know that as well as you, but there can be honor even in politics, war or—love. I have given you my word. Deal!"

His insistence, his confidence, almost caused the older man to laugh. "No, my friend," said he to himself. "You shall not lose!" But what he said aloud was, "You must not be excited, Dunwody. You may need all your nerve. I thought you cooler in times of stress. I hope you like the cards I have given you."

"Give me four more," cried the Missourian.

"Quite right, sir, you shall have them. But how you tremble! You act as though there were 100 acres of niggers at stake, as Mr. Jones would say."

"Go on! You don't know what there is at stake."

"So, now. You have your four cards. I take but three."

They looked now each into his renewed hand of five cards. Dunwody swept a stack of money toward the center of the table. "A thousand dollars against one look from her eye!"

"My dear sir," rejoined the other calmly, "you are raised to the extent of two glances—one from each eye."

"A thousand more to hear the sound of her step—another thousand for one smile!"

Carlisle's voice trembled, but he forced himself under control. "My dear sir, you shall have all you wish! But now, suppose that the betting has gone far enough? What cards have you? For myself, I discover that I have drawn four kings."

Dunwody answered gloomily: "You gave me three tens and a pair of fives, with what I held. You have won the first round."

He dashed a hand and cleared the square of matted hair from his forehead, which now was beaded. Red, florid, full blooded, barked in his eagerness, he looked as savage as some denizen of the ancient forest in pursuit of reckless, as ill suited with ill fortune.

"My deal," said he at length in a voice half a growl. And later, "How many?"

"I shall, if you please, require but one card," was the quiet answer. Dunwody himself required two.

"It is perhaps needless for us to waste time since I cannot divide my stakes," smiled the younger gentleman. Again, with a half growl, Dunwody threw down his cards, face upward. His teeth were clinched, all his muscles set, all his attitude strained, tense. "You have won, my dear senator. I failed to improve my four cards, which it is true, were of one color, but which I regret to say still remain of the one color and of no better company."

"It is even!" exclaimed Dunwody. "Come!"

The cards went around once more, and once more the officer asked for a single card. Once again he lost.

Dunwody drew back with a deep sigh. "Look," he said; "of my three cards were what I wanted—aces, aces, man—four of them! By every token I have won. It's fate."

"Ah, how fortune has run against me today! And so here it is! I write her name for you once more—this time her real name, so far as any in America know it—thus, Josephine, countess St. Auban, of France, of Hungary, of America, abolitionist, visionary, firebrand. There then, though I think you will find the matter of taking possession somewhat difficult to compass, so far as I am concerned, she is, with all my heart, yours to have and to hold if you can. My duty to her is over. Yours begins, I hope."

"But after this what will be your plans?" asked Dunwody.

"I purpose leaving the boat at the first suitable stop, not farther down than Louisville, at least. Perhaps Cincinnati would be yet better. By the fortunes of war you will, therefore, stand in my stead. I've changed my mind suddenly. I told the young lady that we would continue on together, even beyond Cairo. But now—well, to be victor, as Mr. Marx has said, belongs the spoils."

The other made no answer. He only stood to his full height and stretched out his great arms. He seemed a figure come down unchanged from some savage day.

Alone in her stateroom all these hours, Josephine St. Auban had abundant time to reflect upon the singular nature of her situation. At first, and very naturally, she was disposed to seek the protection of the boat's officers, but a second thought convinced her of the unwisdom of that course. As to this stranger, this stalwart man of the west, she had appealed to him, and he had made no sign. She had no friend, no counselor. A feeling of inefficiency, of smallness and helplessness swept over her. She was prisoner to her own good fame. She dared not declare herself. She dared not cry out for help. None would believe her story.

It was while still in this frame of mind that on the day following there came to her a messenger bearing the card of Warville Dunwody. She gazed at it for some moments undecided, debating. Then she set out to meet the sender of the card.

There was no occupant of the saloon excepting one, who rose as she entered, hesitating. On the instant a sudden change swept over Dunwody's face. Was it at first assuredness it had borne? "I am glad that you have this honored me," he said simply. "Carlisle left the boat last night."

"Left the boat—he is gone? Why, he sent me no word, and I thought—at least he said—"

"He has, madam, like Catiline, evaded, broken forth, absconded. But as to leaving word for you he was not quite so heartless as all that. I have a message for you."

With a word craving permission she opened the message. It was brief.

"My dear Countess—You will be glad to know that so far as your late jailer is concerned your captivity is at an end. I am leaving the boat at the next stop, and since that falls in the nighttime I will not disturb you. Senator Dunwody has kindly consented to act as your guardian in my stead, and from your message to him I judge that in any case you would prefer his care to mine."

My dear countess, they are not merely idle words when I say to you that you have won my respect and admiration. Be on your guard and allow me to advise you in the interest of yourself and others to remain silent. Your obliged and dutiful servant.

No reasons were urged, no apologies offered. Obviously the signature was in such circumstances better omitted. The effect of this note, strange to say, was to fill its recipient not with satisfaction, not even with surprise, but with sudden horror. She felt abandoned, forsaken, not pausing to reflect that now she had only what she had demanded of her late companion—guardian she now hastily called him and not jailer.

As to Dunwody himself, ruthless and arrogant as was his nature, he bore no trace of imperiousness now. The silent lips and high color of the face before him he did not interpret to mean terror, but contempt. In the fortunes of chance he had won her.

PROTECT YOUR FAMILY

If you buy your land through my office in Benkelman, it means "INDEPENDENCE" to YOU in LIFE, and INDEPENDENCE to YOUR FAMILY at your death. I will enter into a contract and endorse right on your Mortgage that if you die before you get your land paid for, that all indebtedness is canceled and your family gets clear title to your land, thereby putting them in good circumstances. I know just how a man feels about going into debt and worrying about leaving his family in debt should anything happen to him.

These worries are things I am striving to alleviate for my patrons, and under my plan you have no such worries. Buy of me such a place as you want, pay what you can and make the balance up in yearly payments. If you live you know you can handle it, you know you can make your payments. Should you die, the Mortgage reads right on the face of it, that it is "PAID IN FULL" and your family starts off free from debt.

Moral: "Buy land of Matteson of Benkelman." He always stands by you. Come, look over my lands, pick on a place for yourself and become a booster for this great land of opportunity, where you are independent through life, and your family is independent after your death. My new list and map sent free upon request.

Dame Fortune does not tease men to shake her jeweled hand, nor does opportunity entreat her acceptance."

THE CHURCHES

First Baptist Church.

Bible School 9:15 a. m. B. Y. P. U. 6:30 p. m. Divine Worship 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Rev. Charles E. Watkins, will speak at all these services. Let us make this a great day in the kingdom. Come and bring a friend with you. The public cordially invited to all these services.

The inclement weather and a scourge of measles have hindered many people from attending these meetings during the week, but there has been a growing interest among those who have attended, and some interest is being felt among those who are not Christians.

The meeting on Friday night was marked by special interest. One confessed the Savior, and others are debating what they must do with Jesus. The only thing to do is to turn from the old life and confess Jesus as the Savior and Lord of the soul.

Let us have a large attendance on the Lord's day and pray that the Lord will give us "showers of blessings."

HOME DEPARTMENT.

No. 1—Men's Class, Tuesday, April 15, 7:30 p. m. with Roscoe Speer, corner Seventh and Blish streets.

No. 1—Women's Class Wednesday, April 16, 2 p. m. with Mrs. Julia Sage, Booth street.

No. 2—Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. F. M. Huckleberry, corner Laurel and O'Brien street.

No. 3—Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Sarah Betterly, 222 Tipton street.

No. 4—Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. W. O. Shepard, 509 W. Second street.

The eighth annual reception of the Home Department will be held at the church Thursday afternoon, April 17, at 2:30 o'clock. There will be music, flowers and refreshments and an address by Rev. Chas. E. Watkins. Automobiles will be provided for those who are unable to walk if the superintendent, Mrs. Carpenter, is notified by 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. All members and friends are urged to attend.

Christian Church.

Bible School at 9:30 a. m. We are expecting a fine school tomorrow.

Come and help us and let us help you. Bro. James Huston, our new Supt., with the officers and teachers of the school are planning some new methods to be put into our Bible School work. Every member of the church should be a member of our school. There is a class for everybody. So be sure to be present tomorrow morning.

Communion and preaching service at 10:30 a. m. by the pastor. Theme, "Specializing, or Doing Definite Work." There is to be baptizing to follow the morning preaching service. Two young men are to be "Buried With Him by Baptism."

Also the evening service at 7:30. The pastor will preach on the theme, "The Gospel Seymour Needs." Strangers are made welcome. Everybody is invited to worship with us, who are not otherwise engaged.

Edward L. Pettus, Pastor.

St. Paul Evangelical Church.

Sunday School at 9 a. m. German divine worship at 10:15 a. m. Subject, Twenty-third Psalm. At 7:30 English evening service. The pastor will preach on "Prayer." Good music at all services and everybody welcome.

On Tuesday evening, April 15th, our Y. P. S. will commemorate its tenth anniversary by entertaining the entire congregation in the Sunday School rooms. A good program has been arranged and the members of St. Paul are urged to come at 7:30 p. m.

Wednesday evening at 7:30 mid week bible study. Thursday afternoon at 2:30 the meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society in the Sunday School rooms.

H. R. Boock, Pastor.

German M. E. Church.

The collection for the flood sufferers amounted to $68. One very appreciative letter has been received from one of the pastors for the amount sent him. The usual Sunday services will be observed. The subject of the sermon at 10:30 is "Seeking the Highest Good." At 7:30 stereopticon pictures with comments. Views from within the walls of Jerusalem will be shown. Also a few flood pictures.

E. H. Eggers, Pastor.

Catholic Church.

Low Mass at 8 a. m. High Mass at 10 a. m. Vespers and Benediction at 3 p. m.

The Bible Defended.

At three o'clock Sunday afternoon, Wm. H. Lewellen, of Indianapolis, will deliver an address in the Majestic theatre. Mr. Lewellen is an able speaker, and his subject, "Two Salvations," is of great interest as well as vitality to Bible students.

The meeting is under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association, whose work is proving a revival of the old time religion—confidence in the Bible as the Word of God and belief that within its lids is explained every problem of life. The assurance that the Bible was not only for past times, but that its message for the present time is clear and distinct has proved "help in time of need" for Bible students. As an outgrowth of the long-cherished faith that God's name would yet be cleared of the foul charges made against His name, and a belief that the increased knowledge now known by theologians, ministers and Bible students should be freely given the public, the International Bible Students Association has been started under the motto, "For the glory of God and the good of humanity." Realizing that perfection of knowledge is not a thing of the past, but of the future—of the near future they trust—thousands of Bible students are cooperating, and with this assurance the increased light now due is being sent forth. Meetings in this country and abroad are being held, many times overflowing the largest halls in the leading cities. Christians are having their faith strengthened and many honest skeptics are having their faith reclaimed in the Bible, thousands expressing heartfelt thanks.

No funds are ever solicited and no collections are ever taken, an evidence, many often remark, that consecrated hearts and lives are in the work. All of whatsoever faith, or of no faith, are cordially invited. The words of the Bible students are, "We have nothing to boast of, but much to be glad for. Come, hear, then judge."

COMMITTEE.

Why He Was Late

"What made you so late?" "I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by all dealers. Advertisement.

Harry Mercer, who was formerly material clerk at the B. & O. S-W. offices, but now holding a civil service position at Louisville, was one of the contestants in the meet given at the Athletic Contest, of the Y. M. C. A. Friday at Louisville. The papers speak highly of his work.

"My little son had a very severe cold. I was recommended to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and before a small bottle was finished he was as well as ever," writes Mrs. H. Silks, 29 Dowling Street, Sydney, Australia. This remedy is for sale by all dealers. Advertisement.

ANNA BELLE IS IN A PLAY ON SHIPBOARD

Dear Friends:—Well, we are near the end of our voyage and next week we will land in England. I'm so anxious to see all these countries that will be so new to me and I'm sure you will enjoy the pictures I send you. The play we gave was of course not in real play form, but it was lots of fun anyway and everyone seemed to enjoy it very much. It was "Red Riding Hood," and I wish you could have seen Uncle Ezra as the old wolf. He's the funniest thing you ever saw anyway, and when he put that awful looking wolf's head on and growled everyone had to laugh. A young lady we know played the part of Grandma and I was Little Red Riding Hood. We took in quite a little sum of "gate money" and gave it all to some poor people who were in the Steerage. I told them about the ANNA BELLE SEWING SOCIETY, and they said they had heard about it while in America. This made me very happy indeed to know that the good name of our SOCIETY would even be spread over Europe. Some branch of the Society had helped them and they were very grateful. I'm sure you will enjoy my entire trip and next week I will try and send you another Kodak picture. For some reason the films this week were a failure, but I hope the next picture will be fine. Hope you are getting along fine in Society work and Marjorie writes me that she is enjoying the Presidency of our SOCIETY. Write as often as you can, and address me care this paper. They will see that I get your letters. Think often of your loving,

Anna Belle
